PROFILE

Mr Monaghan has considerable experience in dealing with Health and Safety Executive Prosecutions. He has acted for both employers and employees – past blue chip clients include British Nuclear Group, Bruntwood, Smurfit, and United Utilities.

He has also acted both for prosecuting authorities and defendant companies in Trading Standards prosecutions, including copyright offences.

Mr Monaghan has appeared at tribunal hearings and recently acted for a magistrate facing removal from the bench at a hearing at the Office for Judicial Complaints;

He has considerable experience of inquests, predominantly relating to accidents at work. He is familiar with coroners' practice and the drafting of narrative verdicts etc.

Mr Monaghan's expertise in this field is assisted by a love for and understanding of all things mechanical, especially engines and the like. He comes from a family of engineers and currently runs two classic cars, working on them himself when time and the size of his garage permit.
